Sinclair Oil Drilling N. W. of Coleman

Wildcat Well being drilled in the Racehorse Creek area, north-west of Crows Nest Mountain, by Sinclair Oil Company of Canada. The well is being drilled after nearly two years of geophysical exploration.

This venture, according to Sinclair's Assistant and District Superintendent Phil Dozier, is part of an extensive exploration program which the company has undertaken in the Crows Nest Pass area. Even though this particular well is located between two "dry holes", the company is optimistic of its chances of discovering large gas reserves which are thought to be in this district.

Besides the program in the Pass there are a number of other developments which the company, being one of the largest companies in the world, has underway in Western Canada.

In the Coleman area, a conservative estimate of the monthly payroll, of which a large part goes to local businessmen, comes to approximately $16,000 per month.

Part of this is earned by local people who have found employment with the drilling company, while the remainder of the personnel are those who have moved into the Pass.

The actual drilling, which is being done by the world's largest drilling contractor, Lofland Bros., was begun in late July, and it is estimated will continue until mid-winter. By this time the company hopes to have the tentatively scheduled 12,000 foot well completed. From all reports it is indicated that even if the Racehorse proves non-producing, there are enough factors to warrant drilling of additional wildcat wells in the Sinclair-controlled acreage.

The acreage that Sinclair has under license in the Pass area extends well over 30 miles on north-south direction alone, and it would appear that the Coleman area can look forward to a long period of profitable association with Sinclair Oil Company.

Beauty at a Dude Ranch

Gas Turned On In Coleman

Despite a heavy rain fall many Coleman residents were on hand Friday evening to attend the flame ceremony at the Rodeo grounds marking the coming of natural gas to the town of Coleman. Honor of lighting the gas flare was given to Mayor Frank Abousayyeh who prior to lighting the gas welcomed the people of Coleman to the grounds. He stated that coming of the gas to Coleman was another progressive step by the town. He commended the Bannister Company for their fast work of installing the town owned system despite many adverse conditions. He also commended Mr. Robertson of Bannister Construction Co. who had promised the town that once work on the installations began the job would be done in three weeks' time. He informed the gathering that installations would begin in the next day or two to provide the gas service for the residents of East Coleman living in the improvement district and he added that if they would be buying gas by winter time.

William Kovach, MLA of Hillcrest spoke briefly and commended the town of Coleman for instituting their own gas system and he in turn commended the Bannister Company for their excellent work of installing the system in record time.

Prior to the flame lighting ceremony, a banquet supper was held at the Satellite Cafe attended by Mayor Abousayyeh and council. Mr. and Mrs. Odgen and Mr. and Mrs. Fraser of the Alberta Gas Trunk Company, Mr. and Mrs. Don Dougall and Mr. and Mrs. A. Storzer of West Coast Transmission, William Kovach, MLA of the provincial government, Reverend Denis Fleming and Reverend and Mrs. De Leeuw, Mr. and Mrs. Cressy and Mr. Robertson of Bannister Construction Chairman of the affair was Mayor Abousayyeh who introduced and welcomed the guests.

Provinces Accept
Mun. Winter Works
Incentive Program

The Hon. Michael Star, Minister of Labor, today announced that all provinces have accepted the government's offer to continue the Municipal Winter Works Incentive Program during the coming winter on substantially the same basis as last year.

Many municipalities are already planning projects to be carried on during the winter under the program, the Minister said, and he expected many more municipalities will be making plans to participate in the near future.

This will be the fifth consecutive winter for the program, which will be in effect for six and one-half months from October 15, 1962, to April 30, 1963.

Under the program, the federal government offers to pay one-half the direct payroll cost of a municipality, or its contractors or subcontractors, on approved projects during the period of the program. Many of the provinces add further incentives of their own. The program has been broadened from year to year until it now includes most kinds of municipal capital undertakings.

It is required that the bulk of those employed on projects carried out under the program be unemployed persons, or persons, who would have been unemployed in the absence of the program.

This year one of the conditions of the program is that Canadian materials to be used wherever possible to ensure that the program creates the maximum of employment in Canada.

Under last winter's program, a total of 3269 projects had been accepted from 2747 municipalities—including Indian Bands and unorganized settlements.

The program provided on-site jobs for an estimated 146,000 men, for a total of more than 5,800,000 man-days of work. At least as many more it is estimated secured off-site employment during the winter months as a result of the program.

Lt. F. Beddington Retires as Bandmaster

Lieutenant Fred Beddington of Coleman was honored at a retirement party in the Band room of the RCEME (M) in Blairmore on Saturday night when over fifty guests and members of the unit gathered at a banquet supper prepared by unit caretaker Simon McDonald.

Following the supper, O/C Lieutenant L. Margetak of Blairmore introduced the head table which included Captain and Mrs. J. R. McDonald of Camrose, a former unit O/C, RCEME, unit Captain Reverend and Mrs. Peter Mullen, Major and Mrs. Don Watson of Pincher Creek, Mrs. Margetak, Captain and Mrs. E. Fontana of Lethbridge and Major and Mrs. Stevens of Lethbridge. Lt. Margetak then called on Captain Fontana who behalf of the officers and men of the 31st Technical Squadron RCEME (M) called on Lieutenant Fred Beddington and presented him with engraved silver mug and gift on the occasion of his retirement as band master. In making the presentation Captain Fontana stated that the well known and proficient RCEME band had been started on a dare to himself by Major Bob Reagh formerly of Lethbridge who thought that a unit band in the Pass could not be formed. Captain

Fontana at that time an O/C of the local unit called on Fred Beddington who took up the challenge and formed and developed the present day band which has gained recognition all over Alberta. In accepting the retirement gift, Lieut. Beddington expressed his thanks to the unit and his friends for the fine gesture and volunteered his future help with the band if ever needed. Lieutenant Margetak then called on Mrs. Margetak, who pinned a lovely corsage on Mrs. Beddington.

Two other awards were then presented by Captain Fontana to Staff Sergeant J. Squarek of Bellevue and Lance Corporal George Ashmore of Fernie, B.C. who received CD medals for 12 years continuous service with the unit.

Following the banquet supper the gathering retired to the Armories where over 100 guests enjoyed an evening of dancing and midnight lunch.

United Church A.O.T.S. Name Officers

The Crows Nest Pass A.O.T.S. group of the United Church met in Coleman this week when the new slate of officers for the coming year was installed to office. Reverend deLeeuw of Coleman conducted the installations.

The new slate comprises President Mel Dunford of Coleman, vice president Fred Smith of Blairmore, secretary A. Shigehiro of Blairmore, treasurer Stu Murdoch of Coleman. Chairman of the membership committee is Alex McKay of Blairmore while the program committee comprises Fred Smith, Dr. R. B. Burgman of Blairmore and A. Hereford of Coleman.

The Club agreed that several members will be delegated to attend the United Church Men's Conference to be held in Banff on October 12th, 13th and 14th. The next meeting of the A.O.T.S. is to be held in the Bellevue United Church Room on October 22nd.

I. D. Residents Support Crows Nest Lake Project

Development of the east end of Crowsnest Lake into a recreational area for the Crowsnest Pass may become a reality if the uniting efforts of the Crowsnest Pass Recreational Committee materialize. The active group are striving to have the south east corner of the lake set aside as a park site and then having the water in this section of the lake warmed up by a current diversion scheme.

The committee headed by the Reverend Dean P. Tessier of Blairmore have this week made application made application to A. R. Isbister, Director of Field Services of the Department of Municipal Affairs approve the application that the Crowsnest Lake area be set aside as a park site and that the lake be approached as a warm water swimming area.

To support this wonderful idea that would provide the Pass and all visitors to the area with an ideal summer recreational ground. The residents of the Improvement District No. 10 including the Hillcrest Citizens' Committee, the East Coleman and Blairmore Road Ratepayers' Association have offered to the Crowsnest Pass Recreation committee their area's share of the Provincial Government's Recreational Grant of $1 per capita grant towards the program.

The Improvement District per capita grant is approximately $500.00, which would go a long way towards the projected plan

Election Interest Is High

Activity and interest in Coleman elections to be held October 17 is running high this week as local residents are taking an active interest. Running in the Mayoralty contest are three well-known Coleman men, Jack Ostash, John Ramsey and John Salus.

John Ostash, owner - manager of the Coleman Hotel, came to Coleman two years ago from Rossland, where he also operated a hotel business. Mr. Ostash has also worked in gold mines and mills. He is married and has three children. He is the president of the Coleman Board of Trade and a member of the Elks Lodge.

Mr. Ramsey, a retired town councillor, served the town in this capacity for 20 years. He was also a member of the original committee that was successful in purchasing the Coleman Light and Water Company. Mr. Ramsey is presently secretary of the Coleman Local UMWA and was president for many years.

John Salus, a Coleman native son, and well known merchant of West Coleman, is the third candidate. John first ventured into business in 1941 and since has built the business into what it is today.

In 1951, a second store, handling dry goods, was taken over by Mr. Salus on the Coleman main street. John, a former Board of Trade president, is also a member of the Holy Name Society, the Knights of Columbus and is a school trustee. He is married and has two children.

The three seats vacant on council are being contested by seven men which should also prove an interesting election.

Contentious in this area Bert Bond (retired), Rudy Szynalek, cat operator; and Joe Wavrean, brazier operator; Angelo Toppino, merchant; Walter Dibblee, retired; John Holky, store manager, and Joe Hanrahan, construction foreman.

Huffmans Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor Renovated

Huffmans Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor on main street has undergone both interior and exterior improvements this week as the interior of the barber shop has been covered with a cherrywood type hardwood covering. New paneling has also been installed on the ceiling of the premises and with the new eight foot long fluorescent lights makes the shop very bright. A new large thermopane glass window has also been installed on the front of the barber shop and new foam rubber seating has been added to the waiting benches.

The Beauty Shop operated by Mrs. Huffman has also undergone renovations which include sandlewood covering on the walls, a large thermopane window, new fluorescent lighting, new linoleums besides a new chair and hair dryer. Extra equipment not yet received will also form part of the newly redecorated shop which now also has a waiting room added to the front of the interior of the premises.

Curling Club Officials Resign

The Coleman Curling Club held a meeting last week when an attendance of only four persons was on hand. A prior meeting held was also called off due to lack of attendance.

As a result of the lack of interest and no support President Lorne Ferschweiler and Secretary Fred MacLeod have sent in letters of resignation to Directors George Jenkins, Eugene Fabro, Roy Upston and E. Aiello.

For Mayor OF THE TOWN OF COLEMAN

VOTE

JOHN RAMSAY

On October 17th, you, the citizens of the Town of Coleman, go to the polls to elect a Mayor and three Councillors. You are asked to give your support to John Ramsay for Mayor.

Mr. Ramsay has vast experience and knowledge of what is expected of a Mayor, having served for 20 years on Council and worked with your outgoing Mayor on the many varied projects during his term of office.

Mr. Ramsay is also familiar with the problems that are certain to come before Council from time to time, and promises you that he will be in support of any progressive move that will benefit the ratepayers of Coleman. Always a hard worker in the past, he will continue to work hard to give the Ratepayers good government.

The next year or two will be important ones for the Town of Coleman. The new gas system will require careful management; the Ratepayers should be given another opportunity to consider whether a sewerage system should be installed, and further study be given to the possibility of incorporating some of I.D. 10 into the town. These problems and many more will need the person with the experience to handle them.

Of Many Things

(by Ambrose Hills)

Britain and the Common Market

Some Canadians seem intent on pushing Britain into the Common Market regardless of the terms of entry and the resulting short-term damage to Canadian agricultural interests.

Perhaps Britain should be a member. There are many good reasons for membership. However, it should be accomplished under the best possible terms, and this will not happen if it appears that Commonwealth members are pushing the British into it.

Europeans are tough, hard-headed bargainers. They want to protect their own agricultural and industrial communities to the hilt. If Canadians appear so eager for British entry that they will accept any restrictions willingly, then those restrictions will remain and Canada will suffer severely.

In many respects, such bargaining is like a poker game. Europeans play such a game with consummate skill. They give every indication that they couldn't care less whether Britain comes in or not; but the fact is, they are keenly interested in having British membership. They are simply too smart to show it. Instead, they make the British leader work hard for membership.

They may be less demanding when it is made apparent to them that not everyone in Britain or in the Commonwealth is so eager for membership that old and cherished arrangements will be scrapped without complaint.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker is fully aware of Britain's strong desire to enter ECM, and he is not deliberately balking. He is, on the other hand, strengthening the voice of the British Prime Minister when he bargains in Brussels for better membership terms. And he is attempting to salvage for Canadian farmers and industrial workers something of the markets that have been traditionally theirs.

He has done a good job. He has done so well that those who are less imbued with the welfare of the people have attacked him bitterly and unfairly. He knew that such abuse would be his lot if he stood fast for Canada's welfare. The fact that he was willing to accept such abuse at a time in his political career when he needs praise very badly indicates his strength of character. He could have made a big fellow of himself in London quite easily — by sacrificing the interests of the Canadian people. He chose the hard way and, I think, the better way.

Brian Finerty
New Superintendent
For Dodge

CRANBROOK, B.C. — Brian C. Finerty has been named superintendent of Alberta Natural Gas Company, it was announced today by Vice-President and General Mgr. Charles Pennybacker Smith.

Finerty replaces Ralph C. Dodge who returns to Pacific Gas Transmission Company in the United States for a new assignment.

Alberta Natural Gas Company operates the 106-mile section of the Alberta - California pipeline from just west of Coleman, Alberta, across Crow's Nest Pass and the East Kootenay to Kingsgate.

Gas distributed to East Kootenay communities by Columbia Natural Gas Limited and supplied from Alberta fields by Westcoast Transmission Company Limited is brought to the district through the Alberta Natural Gas Co. system.

Brian Finerty helped build the Alberta Natural Gas pipeline as an engineer for Canadian Bechtel Ltd.

Earlier Finerty was a superintendent and engineer on construction of a paper mill at Elk Falls, a gas scrubbing plant, refinery and sulphur recovery plant at Taylor Flats; gas compressor plants at Caro, Sask.; and an underground power house and tunnel at Keenan.

Finerty is a native of Ballymore, County Westmeath, Ireland. He is an engineering graduate of University College Galway (part of the National University of Ireland).

Both Finerty and his wife, Doreen Bridget now are Canadian citizens. Their daughters, Barbara Ann, 8, and Catherine Jean, 5, are students in Cranbrook schools.

The Finertys also have a son,

Thomas Edward Gilroy of no fixed abode appeared before Magistrate F. S. Radford of Blairmore in police Court in Coleman on Friday morning and was charged with breaking and entering and committing an indictable offence. Gilroy pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 18 months in prison. He also admitted a previous record of similar offences.

Gilroy had stolen three transistor radios valued at over $180.00, four gold watches and $26.00 in cash from a local jeweller. The robbery took place around 10:00 p.m. on Wednesday night and co-operation of Coleman and Blairmore town police and RCMP Police led to the arrest.

CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR

JACK OSTASH

Pictured here is Jack Ostash, who is running in the elections for Coleman Mayor to replace Mayor Frank Aboushaw, who, after many years of service to the town, is retiring from office.

Mr. Ostash, 41 years of age, was born in Oakburn, Manitoba, where he attended school. "Jack" as he is better known to his many friends, has had considerable experience at various occupations. A millwright by trade, he has worked for Flavelle Sears of Port Moody, B.C., has been a truck driver, a cat-skinner, and has also worked in the Macleod Cockshutt Gold Mines in Geraldton, Ontario.

He went into the hotel business in Rossland, B.C., in 1958, where, in a partnership, he successfully managed an hotel before coming to Coleman in April of 1960 to take over ownership and management of the Hotel Coleman.

While here he has been the president of the Coleman Board of Trade for the past two years, and is Lecturing Knight of the Coleman Elks Lodge. His wife, Marie, and two sons, Eddy 16 and Allan 13, and daughter, Mary Jane 9, all live in Coleman.

One of Ostash's pet ideas is to unite into one unit Coleman proper, East Coleman, Grafton Town, Willow Drive and Carbondale, as he feels that with half of the population living in the I.D. 10, that Coleman is losing a good share of tax money that could be used for many community projects. Mr. Ostash has put with the idea that after Coleman has been incorporated into one unit, that steps should then be taken to join Coleman, Blairmore and Bellevue into one big, happy city. He feels that union of Coleman proper and the I.D. 10 into one town would eliminate the present loggerhead that exists between the two over Alberta Government recreation grants.

Mr. Ostash also plans to promote, if he is elected, to look into a bigger and better recreation plan for the young people of Coleman. Bringing new industry into Coleman is also one of the top items on Mr. Ostash's campaign platform.

Is Your Heater
A Cheater?

How often have you said, or heard someone say "That coal (or gas or oil) we're using isn't giving us the heat it used to."

If you are beginning to regard the fuel you are using as being different to what it was a few years ago, it's high time you gave some thought to the whole matter of keeping your home, and your family, comfortable in the colder months.

It probably has nothing to do with the fuel, at all, says the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating, and now is the time to do thinking when you don't need the system.

The real cause of your being less than cozy and comfortable may lie in your heating system.

* Any moderately well-insulated home with fairly airtight windows and doors can be warm and comfortable in every room—every corner of every room—no matter what its age. That is true, of course only if its heating system is adequate for the job to be done and if it is functioning properly.

Some degree of home heating is necessary, our Canadian climate being what it is, for eight out of 12 months.

It makes good sense, therefore, to give the due attention to this most important part of your whole living accommodations. Unless the past winter saw your home completely comfortable, in all its parts no matter what the weather, it would be advisable that a thorough study be made of the situation. It's foolish to endure discomfort and wonder why.

The Institute cautions that heating problems are not to be solved by the layman or the do-it-yourselfer. Too much is at stake and a faulty system will get no better. It pays in the long run to call on a qualified heating man—expert heating contractors may be located in the yellow pages of the telephone directory—and let him make a study of your home's needs and the present equipment.

Sometimes minor adjustments or replacements will serve to restore the heating or the system of heat distribution to its original state of efficiency and performance.

On the other hand, if the whole system is very old it may require replacement with something more adequate for today's needs.

* Don't forget it is a fact that the majority of us nowadays prefer to wear fewer and lighter weight items of clothing and we are not content to huddle in the "warmest" room on cold nights, as were our grandparents.

Candidate For MAYOR

JOHN SALUS, who was born in Coleman 39 years ago and has resided here all his life.

He started in business in 1942 in the West End Meat Market with James Rezac, later in 1945 he purchased the store formerly owned by the late Walter Bobbitt, which he now operates as the Salus General Store and which he completely renovated making a great improvement.

In 1961 Mr. Salus purchased the Freeman's Ltd. Dry Goods Store on Main Street which he completely renovated also and now operates a Modern Clothing Store in addition to his General Store.

He is a member of the Lions Club, secretary-treasurer of the Holy Name Society and is on the executive of the newly formed Knights of Columbus Council in the Pass. Is a past president of the Coleman Board of Trade of which he was active in promoting the Coleman Rodeo, giving his assistance in the catering end of the Rodeo. He was also a member of the Coleman School Board for the past 5 years in which he was active in promoting the new Coleman Junior-Senior High School which is well on its way of being constructed.

John says that if elected he will do his utmost for the residents of the town and Coleman as a whole.

Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 7-13 Observance In Alberta

If you or your neighbour are not asked to do your duty on Fire Prevention Week, the Alberta Fire Commissioner will feel that the nationally proclaimed fire safety week has failed in its objective. "It is my humble opinion," says the Fire Commissioner, "that Fire Prevention Week is an international sign-post pointing the way to life safety and property safety from the ravages of fire."

The Fire Commissioner's staff are all working in support of a full week of fire prevention activity. They acquire all possible information about the latest Government, Industry and Municipal projects and they assist all agencies in the conduct of a thorough fire prevention week program.

There is good reason for review once every year, of the devastation caused by unfriendly fire. In Canada 5,522 lives were lost in the last ten years, and in Alberta 422 lives were lost from fire in the same period. A high monetary loss continues year by year which must be recognized as serious waste and drain upon the energy and resources of the nation. Canadians in every business and vocation are affected in some vital way and similarly every adult and youth can appreciate the need for greater individual knowledge skill and care to effect means for prevention of fires.

It is natural that citizens look to the fire departments for leadership in the conduct of Fire Prevention Week programs. I commend this because the knowledge and the skill of our fire department officers are a powerful force in the public information program. It would be a mistake however to consider Fire Prevention Week in any way exclusive to fire departments only. Every community organization and every individual owes a personal debt to active observance of the week. There will be opportunity for all to invest in a one-year fire-free protection plan. Fire Prevention Week should and can generate a strong feeling about the importance of fire safety.

What are your feelings about it?

Do you know what you can do about it? If so be assured that your thought and action contribution will be appreciated.

Be Consistent About Fire Prevention...

One time we had a fire inspector who worked all the towns and villages from the back entrances. The stores, cafes, garages and offices all looked presentable from the front but often the back view showed the true character of the proprietor. Boys have been known to have shiny faces but still slightly dark on the back of the neck and behind the ears. It takes time to be thorough and its human to hope we can get away with something. How simple it would be to stop fire waste if only we were all consistent. We all believe in improvement, we all believe in gain. We all aim to do things that will improve our position but consider the variety of diversions that people employ that eventually drives them in the opposite direction to fire safety.

Take the retail proprietor, for instance, whose back yard and store warehouse was found by our "back entrance fire inspector" filled with empty cartons, paper and litter. He was the busy type, rushing from one thing to another. He would complain that he could not get competent help. He got a fire prevention order.

Next, our inspector finds a very ardent clean-up man. He gets rid of his rubbish at once - no accumulation in his yard or buildings; but he burns it all in a rusty old barrel on the back of his lot. Sparks from this open fire create a hazard to the whole block.

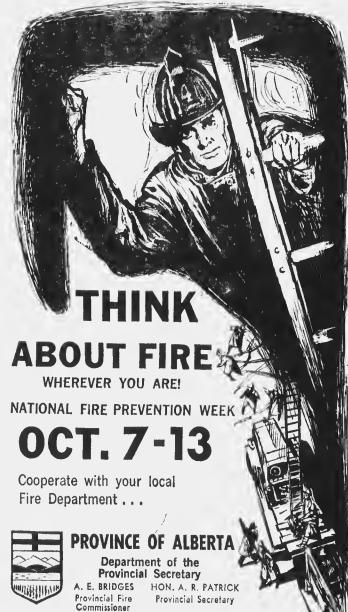

Our inspector often finds the "do-it-yourself artist" busy modifying the electric wiring and services. Extension cords over nails, bulbs dangerously close to paper and cloth. These conditions plus oversize fuses are an open invitation to fire loss. Again we issued an order, but in addition we report our findings to the electrical inspection branch of government.

Not all the fire hazards are in the back of commercial premises, but we, the Fire Commissioner's Inspectors, look for evidence of unsafe smoking habits, dangerous handling of naphtha gasoline, solvents, paints, matches, and a great variety of volatile or highly flammable materials. In garages we find spray painting without the protection of a spray booth of a fire resistive room properly ventilated.

One of the most dangerous hazards to the workmen and serious risk to property as well, is the repair of automobile gas tanks and the draining of gasoline or leaving open containers or cans of gasoline in a garage.

Here the whole operation is at the mercy and discretion of each workman. Does he appreciate the danger? Is he indifferent or reckless as to his own safety and to the safety of others?

Touring Southern Alberta

(By George H. Meyer, Associate Editor, The Camrose Canadian)

Ken Liddell, well known columnist of The Calgary Herald, once referred to Southern Alberta as the "Roamin' Empire", and members of the Tourist Association in that part of the province liked the name so well that they adopted it and use it in promoting tourism in their area.

There are few who know this part of the province any better than Mr. Liddell, for he travels some part of it every week in search of unusual stories for his tri-weekly column. And so, it seemed only natural that, in arranging a tour of Southern and Central Alberta for five newspaper writers from widely scattered points, George LeStrange, manager of the Alberta Tourist Association, should choose Mr. Liddell to act as his chief assistant and guide.

The tour assembled in Medicine Hat on Saturday, September 8th, and during the following week we visited Elkwater Lake in the Cypress Hills Provincial Park, Brooks and the Dinosaur Provincial Park at Steeveline, Drumheller with its Badlands, Lacombe, Red Deer, Sylvan Lake, Rocky Mountain House, Ricinus, Calgary, Banff, Fort Macleod, the Frank Slide, Waterton Lakes, Cardston and Lethbridge.

Guests on the tour were Mr. Liddell, Bill Powers of The Edmonton Journal, Caroline Gunnarson of The Winnipeg Free Press, Prairie Farmer Weekly, Keith Dryden of the Saskatchewan Western Producer, Clyde Reichelt of the Great Falls (Mont.) Tribune, and I represented members of the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Assn.

The first event of the tour was sight-seeing in Medicine Hat, the city which has been called (among other things) "the city with all hell for a basement" (Rudyard Kipling) and "Canada's Prairie Pittsburgh" (John Fisher). The city boasts no less than ten playgrounds for kiddies, with all the equipment for them being produced locally by Scott Manufacturing, under the trade name "Blue Imp".

The city is best known to tourists, perhaps, because of its green houses and its glass and pottery plants. There are 16 green-houses, one of these the second largest in Canada. A total of 23 acres of plants of all kinds can be seen growing under glass, and products are supplied to markets stretching from Fort William to the West Coast. Needless to say, hailstorms can cause serious problems for the greenhouse owners, and we are informed that only one insurance company, Lloyds of London, considers the glass growing sheds insurable. The growing season at Medicine Hat averages 170 days, with an abundance of sunshine, and this is the reason for its many greenhouses.

Although there are two glass-making plants, a ceramic tile factory and the Hycroft China factory in the Medicine Hat area, our party visited only the Alta Glass Plant, where ornamental glassware is produced by imported glass-blowers. We saw silica sand, imported from Minnesota, placed in huge furnaces, heated to 2300 degrees Fahrenheit, mixed with other chemicals such as potash and soda ash, and removed in the molten form on long blowpipes. It is then blown and formed into such products as vases, flower bowls, paper weights and ash trays and sold at reasonable prices all over Canada.

The Alta Glass Plant is open to visitors for tours at certain hours each day, as is the Goodyear Rubber Plant just west of the city, which was also included in the tour.

At the Goodyear plant we were delighted to see raw rubber from British Malaya, mixed with synthetic rubber to improve its wearing quality, changed into uncured tread rubber for retreads, and finished tires for all kinds of motor vehicles. We were surprised to learn that the raw rubber is not heated, but rather, as it is mixed in large vats, it must be cooled by water. The rubber mixture, we were told, never melts, but rather "plasticizes". It is heated only when it is being formed into tires, or, in the case of the retread material, when it is being applied to an old casing. One hundred and sixteen men are employed at the plant.

A brief visit to the tourist hut in Medicine Hat revealed that about 17,600 tourists pulled off the Trans-Canada highway to seek information on the city and the province during the past season. United States visitors numbered 6106.

The rest of the afternoon was taken up in a drive to Cypress Hills Provincial Park, about 50 miles south of Medicine Hat. In the park is Elkwater Lake which was visited by over 8,000 tourists last year, most of them residents of the Gas City, who spend their week-ends at the lake in tents and cottages.

At the time of our visit the hills were covered with snow due to a recent storm, but this is understandable when one realizes that this is the highest level of land between the Rockies and the Atlantic Coast. In these hills can be found 40 different species of insects and plants which are not normally seen north of the Rio Grande River in southern U.S.A. Geologists believe that the huge glacier which covered this continent millions of years ago somehow missed the Cypress Hills leaving plants and insects resembling, at times, those from the prehistoric era, now found as fossils.

Elkwater Lake covers about 160 acres, and in spite of a few dry years, is still known as a fisherman's paradise. It is stocked mainly with pike, although there are some pickerel as well.

Upon our return to Medicine Hat where we spent the night, we were guests at a reception and banquet of the Medicine Hat Chamber of Commerce.

The next article in this series will deal with our visit to the Dinosuar Provincial Park at Steeveline (near Patricia), Brooks, and the Drumheller Badlands.

Coleman Girl
Wed Recently

The Holy Ghost Catholic Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on September 1st, when Doreen Siska, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. Siska, became the bride of Alex ander Karasiuk of Tway, Saskatchewan.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Reverend Denis Fleming while organist was Mrs Marie Youngberg of Hillcrest and Soloist was Mrs. Betty Tymislow.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and she looked lovely in a heavy white satin floor-length gown with lace inserts around the neck and overskirt with a long train and sleeves extended to a lily point. Her short tiered veil misted from a crown of satin roses and she carried a flower cross of red roses white stephanias and carnations. Bridesmaids were Eileen Siska of Benson, Saskatchewan and Kathleen Siska of Calgary, while junior bridemaid was Valene Salus of Coleman. All attendants were dressed in peau de soie in red sheath frocks, which were complemented by matching cumberlands with a drop sash and white organza roses headpiece. They carried bouquets of white carnations centered with a red rose. Attending the groom were George Siska and Bob Shipensky.

The bride's mother chose a blue lace two-piece dress with white accessories for the wedding while the groom's mother wore a double-knit brown dress with gold accessories.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where John Salus acted as master of ceremonies and proposed the toast to the bride. Miss Dorothy Binda took charge of the guest book.

For her honeymoon trip to Eastern Canada the bride wore a three-piece double knit green suit with black accessories. The young couple will make their home in Edmonton.
